An interesting exposition of cultural problems.

By Edoardo Angeloni

In this book the author has against the traditional approach a return at philosophical questions. It is interesting too see as Deleuze produces his frame-work also by a psychological view.

But here his attention is particularly related in the traditional sense at ethics. He offers a typical frame for studying the model of modernity, posing a construction of deductions. This operation of deductions and inductions makes it part of a successions of trials, which makes so sense in those actions related to the philosophical system.
