In Alsace on a wine-buying trip, Rachel comes across a first-rate wine...and a first-rate man. Luc, the owner of the Chartier winery, introduces her to the flavor of love, which turns out to be as sweet as the high-quality Chartier pinot grigio. Rachel has met many attractive men in her life, but never one as perfect for her as Luc. Even though she knows that she will eventually have to return to London, she can't help but fall for him...until she finds out about his ex-wife and a dark secret from his past!

This romance will live with me!

By Jeanne D'Arc, Romance Junkee

It's been a long time since I read a romance where a man's love was so strong and powerful, I wished I could step inside the pages with him. There are so many moving scenes that penetrated the very depth of my soul, and that doesn't happen very often. This book truly touched feelings I didn't know were inside me. I don't want to give away the plot, but you must read this one. It's unique.

This is a heartwarming love story that compelled me to read it all in one sitting.

By KayLovesToRead

4 Stars! ~ This is the second book in the Brides of Bella Lucia, and our heroine is the twin sister of the heroine in book one. The attraction between Luc and Rachel is instantaneous, but both have baggage that seems to create insurmountable obstacles. This is a heartwarming love story that compelled me to read it all in one sitting. These two deserve their HEA, and I'm looking forward to reading Emma's story next in the series.

The Brides of Bella Lucian Book 2

By Anita Draper

I enjoyed reading this book set in the vineyards of France. It's the story of a woman who's been busy with her career while waiting for the perfect man. And, it's the story of a man who uses everything in his power to try to assuage his guilt. When these 2 people meet, they see themselves and their lives as if a curtain has been opened.

Rachel Valentine is a wine buyer for the exclusive Bella Lucia restaurants in London. She has an estranged twin in the US, a dying grandfather in England, and a father she can't please. Her family is bogged down in strife. Add to that, the guilt she feels because she couldn't make it back to the States in time to say a final farewell to her dying mother. But, even with all this going on, Rachel looks the picture of perfection. When she reaches the province of Alsace with its terraced vineyards, Rachel feels like she's come home. Add to that her physical reaction to a certain vintner and for the first time in her life, Rachel wonders if it's time she stopped her wandering and settled down with a loving husband and a baby or two in a sunny home in a quiet location.

Luc Chartier is devoted to his ex-wife who's in a coma in a nearby hospital. He provides the absolute best care for her and never misses a day of sitting beside her bed willing her to wake. She's been in a vegetative state for 3 yrs already, but Luc refuses to let the family 'pull the plugs'. And then one day, Rachel drives into Luc's world and jumpstarts his thirst for life. He starts questioning his reason for wanting his ex-wife to wake. And he starts devising a plan to keep Rachel in the province awhile longer to see what the attraction is all about.

Luc is making one horrendous mistake, however - he neglects to tell Rachel about his devotion to his ex-wife....
